Rilwann Lukman, who is also Nigeria's oil minister, said he and ministers from Veneznela and Indonesia would also visit OPEC members to rally sup-port for production quotas that individual states are supposed to observe.

Prices have declined by around $3 a barrel this month. Traders mainly attribute the fall to reports of OPEC overproduction to meet rising de-mand from nations that, concerned by tension in the Gulf, were adding to their stockpiles. After a report in the authori-tative Middle East Economic Survey on Monday that OPEC was exceeding its overall quota of 16.6 million barrels a day by as much as 3 million barrels, prices skidded by up to $1 a barrel on world markets. # Despite Recovery, New York Is 'Very Seriously Ill Place'

By Margot Homblower

Washington Post Service NEW YORK - Twelve years after the nation's largest city nearly went broke, New York stands undisputed as the world's financial capital.

Its coffers, then $1.8 billion in the red, overflow with a $660 million budget surplus, unemployment is at a 14-year low, and ever-taller, ever-flashier skyscrapers crowd Manhattan Island.

So why was Mayor Edward L Koch posing in newspaper ads a few weeks ago hammering ply-wood to shut off the entrance of the Holland Tunnel to New Jersey?

The uneven boom was driven by an administration whose chief mission was to balance the books.

"When I came into office 10 years ago, people said the city was going to go bankrupt in 60 days," Mr. Koch said in a recent interview. "I felt

Problems Beset Air Control System In U.K. as Tourist Season Nears Peak

By Howell Raines New York Times Service

LONDON --- As the summer tourist season nears its peak weekend here, Britain's air traffic control system has been hit with computer failures, serious morale problems and a dispute over evidence that many near-collisions are going unreported.

The Civil Aviation Anthority has hired outside consultants to investigate a series of nine breakdowns in the new computer system that monitors all trans-Atlantic flights between the United States and Britain

The $10.8 million computer, located at Prestwick. Scotland, malfunctioned on Sunday and again on Monday. causing delays of up to two hours in flights bound for the United States from London's two major airports, Heathrow and Gatwick

The computer, made by Digital Equipment Corp., a U.S. company, automatically tracks 500 airplanes daily as they fly the Atlantic and has a "conflict alert" system to warn of potential colli-sions. A spokesman for Digital Equipment said the problems were caused by the software program provided by a British company, rather than by the computer. computer.

Officials of the Civil Aviation Authority and the Guild of Air Traffic Controllers say that the nine computer failures since March 31 have posed no immediate safety threat for passengers, since the North Atlantie air lanes are not crowded.

But Christopher Tugendhat, chairman of the aviation agency, and Steve Hall, spokesman of the air traffic controllers' guild, are in conflict about how much traffic the Oceanic Air Control Center at Prestwick should handle while the computer malfunction is being investigated.

Mr. Hall wants the aviation agency to institute "flow control," or reduced traffic, throughout the study period, so that fewer planes will be in the air if the computer goes down again and controllers at Prestwick are forced to revert to old-fashioned manual tracking using cardboard progress strips on a map.

"There's been only one total outage," Mr. Hall staid, "but there have been times when the information from the computer has been so corrupt that you can't use it. In our husiness, we don't take

Mr. Tugendhat said in an interview on Tuesday that permanent reduction in intercontinental flights is not warranted by the sporadie computer

"If a computer goes down, you have flow control of a rather stringent sort introduced as a conse-quence of that," Le said. "Our belief is that you should have this system at the ready, not that you have it in permanent operation." He noted that the problem of potential collisions is less pressing in Britain than in the United States.

"In the States, the peak times problem is far worse than it is here," Mr. Tugendhat said.

Nonetheless, a recent study by the Royal Air Force Institute of Aviation Medicine has increased worry about collisions and near-collisions of the sort that have dogged U.S. aviation recently, By inviting controllers to file confidential reports, the institute turned up 13 unreported near-collisions, 11 of which were serious enough to have warranted

The Civil Aviation Authority is upset by the "hair-raising anonymous reports" and the insti-tute's refusal to provide further details from its confidential records, said Anne Noonan, a press officer at the aviation agency.

This dispute between the agencies is unusual in a nation that thinks of itself as running an avistion system much safer and saner than that of the United States.

Heathrow, the world's busiest international airport, handles 26.4 million international passengers a year. London's smaller airport, Gatwick, handles 15.8 million such passengers yearly and recently replaced Kennedy International Airport in New York as the world's second busiest international airport.

SEOUL --- In a move that could worsen political tensions here, the government arrested six student acivists Tuesday, including one of the best-known student leaders.

The arrests were the most politically significant since the government announced sweeping demo-cratic reforms on June 29. Coming just a few days before students are to return to campus from their summer vacation, the arrests seemed likely to touch off sharp student protests.

The police arrested Woo Sang Ho, 24, the chairman of the student council of Yonsei University, on charges of violating South Korea's law on assembly and demonstrations. But police sources said that he would also he charged with the serious crime of slandering the state for making "undesirable statements," including one to The New York Times in which Mr. Woo compared South Korea's government to Naziism.

Five other students were also arrested and charged with instigating labor unrest at an electronics plant owned by Lucky-Goldstar Group in the city of Pyongtack, 60 miles (100 kilometers) south of Seoul.

The arrests were made as tension mounted over the death of a young shipvard worker in a clash with riot policemen. With labor unrest sweeping the country, student leaders have said they would take up the workers' cause when they return to school. Such links between student and worker protests deeply alarm the government.

The government has also acted as opposition groups were moving to politicize the death of the ship-

Bush to Visit Poland in September

WARSAW (AP) -- Vice President George Bush will travel to Poland in late September, a government spokesman said Tuesday. It will be the highest-level visit by a U.S. official since Poland declared martial law in late 1981 late 1981.

The government spokesman, Jerzy Urban, said that Mr. Bush would arrive in the last third of September but that he could not provide exact. dates. He said Mr. Bush would probably travel outside Warsaw. There have been reports that he wants to meet Lech Walesa, leader of the outlawed independent trade union Solidarity, who lives in Gdansk.

"After I get a chaoce to get together with my family and find out more about the events that have transpired in the last few days, FII have?" something to say," he said.

Mr. Hart's former campaign manager, William Dixon, suggested last week that Mr. Hart, 50, was likely to restart his campaign, which be quit after a scandal stemming from suggestions that he had been sexually involved with a 29-year-old model.

Soviet to Set Afghan Pullout Deadline

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet deputy foreign minister said Tuesday that a deadline for withdrawal of all Soviet troops from Afghanistan would be determined during the next round of talks in Geneva aimed at negotiating an end to the war.

Igor A. Rogachev made the statement during a Foreign Ministry briefing on international affairs. Mr. Rogachev, an expert on Soviet. relations with Asian countries, said the Russian presence in Alghanistan has become less of an obstacle to improved relations with China because of last year's withdrawal of 8,000 Soviet soldiers and the Kremlin's intention "to withdraw completely its troops from there shortly."

No date has been announced for the next round of the United Nationsponsored talks, but they are expected to take place before the end of the ear. Soviet officials have repeatedly asserted that Moscow wants to end its involvement in the Afghan civil war. But they have previously tied the schedule for withdrawal to cessation of assistance by Pakistan and the United States to anti-government rebels.

Canadian Rail Strike Enters 2d Day

TORONTO (AP) — The government threatened to intervene and its top mediator brought Canada's striking railroad unions and management together on Tuesday, the second day of a national strike by 48,000 rail workers that stopped freight traffic and created commuter chaos.

The national passenger service, Via Rail, was not a strike target, but all trains were canceled and 4,000 employees were laid off because Via Rail relies on the crews and track of Canadian National and CP Rail, whose employees were on strike. However, delayed passengers were offered air or bus service at no extra cost.

Union officials said negotiators were given two days to resolve the first rail strike in 14 years, after which legislation would be introduced. The strike, which began Monday, was called in a dispute over job security. The government estimated that the strike had stopped 30 percent of Canada's freight shipments, and was costing the railroads about 20 million Canadian dollars ($15 million) a day.

- President Ronald Reagan has broadcast a message on Radio Liberacion, the elandestine station of the Nicaraguan rebels, in an attempt to reassure the rebels and their followers of his continued Support.

The three-minute speech Monday night, broadcast in English and A followed by a Spanish translation, was heard in much of Nicaragua and Central America but was electronically jammed by the leftist government in Managua, the Nicaraguan capital.

Mr. Reagan's message, taped at his ranch near Santa Barbara, California, on Saturday, was part of his effort to demonstrate to U.S. conservatives and rebel leaders the limits of his support for the preliminary peace accord signed Aug. 7 by Nicaragna and its four Central American neighbors.

Pinochet's Intention to Hold Power <sup>4</sup> Raises Doubts About U.S. Policy

By Bradley Graham Washington Post Service SANTIAGO - After encouraging the departure of longtime dictators in Haiti and the Philippinus, the Reagan administration is facing a more formidable challenge in seeking to nudge from power Presi-dent Augusto Pinochet of Chile.

General Pinochet's apparent determination to retain the presidency through a single candidate election next year has raised questions here about the effectiveness of U.S. policy in encouraging the general to leave after 14 years in power.

As Chile nears a political crossroads, moderates on the left are urging Washington to place more on the government, while Pinochet gets. Among the factors complicating the Chilean case have been the absence of a united democratic opposition as well as General Pinochet's formidable skills as a politician. Even his barshest critics acknowledge that the 71-year-old general is deft at exploiting the op-position's divisions and cultivating the nationalism and professiona loyalty of the military.

In statements last week during a visit to Santiago, Robert Gelbard, deputy assistant U.S. secretary of state for South American affairs, put the United States on record as preferring competitive presidential elections in Chile. But he also backed a planned single-candidate plebiscite provided the vote is held with safeguards against fraud.

Much of Chile's democratic opposition wants the United States to go further and apply economic sanctions. At a minimum, the op-position wants Washington to support the kind of social mobilization and mass demonstrations that undermined Jean-Claude Duvalier in Haiti and Ferdinand E. Marcos in the Philippines last year and forced a democratic opening in South Korea this year. Several bills recently introduced in the U.S. Congress reflect grow-ing concern on Capitol Hill about General Pinochet's intentions and the Reagan administration's mea-sured policy. U.S. officials still hope that some coalition of center-right opposition groups can entice the armed forces into an agreement on a mutually acceptable civilian candidate for the plebiscite.

Responsibility for picking the nomince rests with the commandnominee resis with the command-ers of the armed forces and police. General Pinochet, who is openly campaigning to be the candidate, annotinced last week that the plebiscite would be held in "about a year," earlier than the March 1989 constitutional deadline.

The U.S. strategy includes urg-ing the military to break ranks with General Pinochet. To this end, the Reagan administration has declined to vote against international loans to Chile. Sanctions, officials say, would antagonize conservative forces in Chile and arouse nationalist resentment that could serve General Pinochet.

"A certain ambiguity continues to exist in the U.S. approach," said Heraldo Muñoz, a Socialist Party leader who recently completed a book on U.S.-Chilean relations. "On the one hand, the United States has become quite critical of the situation in Chile. On the other

The Reagan administration has endorsed calls for constitutional changes. But Washington's room to mancuver has been stunted by the inability of Chile's splintered demnochet. The United States has reocratic opposition to unite around this theme or much else. There is still a chance that Gen-

Hard Times Approach

"U.S. Trade Gap in June Grew to $15.71 Billion." Like Beirut car bombings and defense contract overruns, big trade deficits have become routine. The bad news hardly registers in America, even when the dollar takes a nasty drop. The latest figures are nonetheless stark. Unless America's biggest trading partners stimulate demand at bome. a worldwide recession will be hard to avoid.

Why do U.S. trade deficits persist despite a 30 percent drop in the dollar in two years? Japanese and European exporters have Japanese and European exponents have trimmed profits rather than accept lower sales volumes. A glut in world production has prevented a rebound in U.S. grain exports. Heavy Latin American debt has forced Brazil and Mexico, two of the best U.S. customers, to cut back on purchases.

The most important reason, though, and the one that looks easiest to correct, is the global imbalance in economic demand.

The U.S. economy is chugging along; nemployment has dropped below 6 percent for the first time since 1980. Japan's, by contrast, seems stalled on the tracks. Its growth rate is an anemic (for Japan) 3 percent, and unemployment approaches a record (for Japan) high of 3 percent. The world's other big economic player, West Germany, is in even worse shape, with less than 2 percent growth forecast and with 9 percent unemployment. As a result, there has been little increase in foreign demand for competitively priced American products. In June, U.S. imports rose by 5.8 percent while exports were up just 1.6 percent.

10 Both Tokyo and Bonn, tepid domestic growth and the resulting widening of the trade gap evoke official dismay. But both governments are obsessed by the fear of inflation, and beither is prepared to challenge conventional conservative wisdom. Japan is dawdling on its reluctant commitment to stimulate its economy modestly. West Germany refuses outright to do its part as a locomotive for the world economy.

In theory, America can go on importing, almost twice as much as it exports as long as foreign investors are willing to plow back their surplus dollar earnings - and as long as Congress resists tough import barriers. But eventually, unless the trade deficit narrows, foreign investors will get cold feet and the dollar will take another plunge.

Then the sputtering Japanese and West German economies, so dependent on export markets, will run out of gas entirely. Few economists believe that the U.S. Federal Reserve will at that point be able to find a path between inflation and recession. There are many ways for politically weak governments in Japan and West Germany in rationalize their passivity. At the moment, they can rightly denounce America's unwillingness to face up to its budget deficits. But rationalizations will provide little comfort when the market for all those cars and cameras and machine tools takes a tumble. Burdened by leaders lacking the vision and political courage to coordinate policies, the world economy drifts toward hard times.

A Challenge for Duarte

The Arias peace plan leaves El Salvador in a deceptively advantageous place. The plan was designed in deal with Nicaragua. and, being drawn by governments, it favors the Sandinists: It ends foreign support of local guerrillas and opens the political system only to "unarmed internal political opposition groups." These terms led a wary Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega to accept a commitment to conciliation and democratic reform. The same terms led an exuberant Salvadoran President José Napoleón Duarte to embrace the Arias plan. El Salvador, an imperfect but striving democracy, can live with the Arias goal of democracy far more easily and credibly than Nicaragua can. And in putting an international stamp on delegitimizing guerrillas, the Arias plan handed President Duarte a major boon.

So it appears that El Salvador is in a nolose situation, tf the Salvadoran guerrillas endorse the Arias rules, halt their cruel economic sabotage and their military raids and join the legal political process, the Duarte forces will bave a triumph. This result would also give something to those on the left who believe in democracy and reform, not just in destruction and revolution. But if the guerrillas reject the Arias plan and they targely have — they will suffer isolation. Especially will this be so if the Sandinists make good on their pledge to cut off support for the Salvadoran insurgents, who are a good deal tess needful of outside maintenance than the Nicaraguan contrast hut still take some Sandinist aid. Let there be no premature celebration for President Duarte, however. For all of the advantages he can extract from the Arias plan, the Salvadoran guerrillas retain an independent war-making capability, a political constituency and a territorial base. A plan that offers them less than what they were trying to get from their earlier unproductive "dialogue" with President Duarte is unlikely to stop the war. The formal terms of the Arias plan, drawn with Nicaragua first in mind, need to be adapted to Salvadoran circumstances, something that lingering feudal elements in El Salvador resist. In short, President Duarte has a promising agreement to work with, but he has his work eut cut for him, too. - THE WASHINGTON POST.

One Marine in Moscow

With the sentencing of Sergeant Clayton Lonetree to 30 years' imprisonment, a major phase of the Moscow marine scandal has come to an end. From the beginning, Sergeant Lonetree was the key figure. His guilt has now been established. His offenses are serious. A member of an elite unit, the embassy guard was the first marine in the ט עיור the corns to be tried espionage. Now a military jury has found him guilty of acts that he first confessed last December: He had an affair with a Soviet agent and under ber influence gave to the KGB photographs of U.S. intelligence agents, embassy floor plans and more than 100 classified documents. In exchange, he received money from the Soviets. Disgraceful as this case is, six months ago it appeared to be much worse. Four Marine Corps guards had been implicated, the entire Moscow guard contingent of 28 young men had been returned to Washington and charges were being made that the physical security of the embassy had been breached. But this was not proved. No evidence was produced that substantiated the tale of guards letting KGB agents into the building at night, guiding them to offices and code rooms and standing by while bugs were placed and secret material compromised. Charges against one marine, Corporal Arnold Bracy, have been dropped. Those against Sergeants Robert Stufflebeam and Kenneth Kelliher relate to cootacts with Soviet women but not to espiouage. Jucstions remain concern tigation, which was conducted by a civiliao arm of the oavy. In what circumstances, for example, did both Sergeant Lonetree and Corporal Bracy confess to letting the Soviets into the embassy? Did justifiable concern about embassy security in Moscow - compounded by revelations about bugs in the new building under construction - lead to unreasonable pressures and unfounded charges in the case of some marines? The involvement of Sergeant Lonetree, who turned himself in and confessed to numerous acts of espionage, has been fairly clear all along. But unless

Prosperity Makes Democracy Inescapable

C AMBRIDGE, Massachusetts -- There have been few times in history when the word "democracy" has been so persistently, even extra-vagantly, a subject of public reference as to these last months. The bicentennial of the Constitution of the United States, developments in the Philippines and South Korea and possibly even in the Soviet Union, and the didactic rhetoric of Lieutenant Colonel Oliver North have combined to threaten dangerously our ears. Certainly we have been left in no doubt as to the virtues of this design for government, even in the rather flexible form avowed in the Irancontra hearings. And here is the problem: We have heard too much of the virtues of democracy — a matter of which, generally speaking, we are aware. We have heard too little of its practical utility, and, more especially, given the relevant circumstances, its historical inevitability.

This failure in recognize the utility and inevitability of democracy is, in turn, the source of one of the most serious - perhaps the most serious - errors in American foreign policy.

The broad and wholly visible circumstance is that there can be and are dictatorships in primitive tribal or landlord-dominated agricultural socicties, and perhaps for a while in the early stages of industrial develop-ment, or in times of economic regression and hardship, as in Germany and Italy in the 1930s. People who are subject in their daily lives to the personal authority or economic power of tribal leaders, large landowners or primal capitalists, or to the weight of economic depression, are not especially sensitive to the authority of some civilian or military dictator or junta in the often remote capital. Their freedom of expression is sufficiently circumscribed by the local talent, as also by poverty and an all-embracing struggle to survive. Mass illiteracy also contributes greatly to political docility.

All of this changes with economic and industrial development. The con-trolling circumstance then is simply that a very large number of people, individually and in organizations, insist on being heard. Poverty and ignorance have sufficiently released their grip so as to allow the houry - in fact, the imperative - of self-expression. Diverse business interests, trade unions, professional groups, farm organizations, university students and faculty, journalists, publicists, religious leaders, self-motivated custodians of the public interest — the list can be extended almost indefinitely - all wish to have a voice in the way they are governed, and not less in the way others are governed.

The same attitudes that have defeat-ed the exercise of external imperial power in this century resist the unli-censed exercise of authority within the country. The only way so far discovered for allowing this expression and according it some real or imagined effect is some form of participatory democracy - some form of participation in the act of government. Democracy is not, as we regularly suggest, a fragile thing; in the absence of any workable alternative, it is inevitable.

All of this could seem theoretical, abstract, were it not so powerfully affirmed to practice. There is ro advanced industrial country outside the socialist world that does not have, in one form or another, a democratically oriented government. So it is to the United States and Canada, in Japan, Australia, New Zealand, India (now an emergent industrial power), Brazil, Argentina and Mexico, in Israel and in all of Western Europe without exception. In the nonindustrial world, on the other hand, democracy is at best tary dictatorship, the civiliao rather readily foregoue. In a wicked strongman or a permanently dominant minority. What in the industrially developed world is the rule is in the conindustrial world sadly the exception to the rule.

It is equally clear and certain that as countries develop and move into the modern industrial sector, they reject the old dictatorial or autarchi and demand the democratic right of participation and self-expression. This we have seen in recent decades in Spain, Greece, Argentina and Bra-zil, elsewhere of late in Latin America and most recently in the Philippines and South Korea. And we also now see the Soviet Union and China making concessions to this insistent demand by the people to participate or, in any case, to be heard.

Our error is to think of democracy as a virtue - something to be cher-exceptional. Here there is the mili- ished but, if circumstances required world, we hold that our virtue, little as we doubt it, is not necessarily for all. So we come to terms with dictatorial regimes; this is the practical course.

> No one is more suspect than the official or politician who rests his or her case on moral grounds. In foreign policy discourse, that is thought softheaded. Conservatives and perhaps especially liberals have pride in showing that they can be as tough as the practi-cal situation seems to require.

Morality and virtue can be compromised, but historical inevitability cannot. And that is why regularly Americans find themselves holding hands with dictators and repressive regimes while history is marching them out. So it has been to these last years in the Philippines and South Korea. So it will be in the future in Taiwan, Chile, Pakistan, Indonesia and eventually

Korea's Labor Unrest Has Deep Roots

WASHINGTON - The surge of worker discontent in South Korea stems from economic dissatisfaction but also from a complex set of cultural and political reasons. In a Confucian society, benevolence and trost - not contracts - are the basis of human relations. Thus labor unionization, which assumes legal and often adversarial relationships between workers and management, began as a rather foreign concept. Anti-communist impulses stem-ming from Cold War politics during the 1940s combined with the cultural resistance to further hamper labor unions. The American military command, which ruled South Korea from 1945 to 1948, cracked down on na-are a passing phase. As a matter of current practical relevance, the United States cannot install democracy in Latin America. With economic development, however, it will surely come. I do oot suggest that with industrial development the transition to de-mocracy will always be smooth. Repression can ourture a violent mood, which, when released, can in turn be ister to my people. The Catholic Bish-ops' Conference of Nicaragua has met more than 10 times with the Sandinists inimical in democracy. More particularly, when Americans align themselves with dictators and argin menselves with occasions and against history, the legacy will be a strong, perhaps even a politically deci-sive anti-Americanism. Suppressed during the dictatorship, it will burst into full flame in the aftermath.

This anti-Americanism is the present experience in the Philippines and especially in South Korea, as it continues to be in Iran. And we have seen a further and even more extreme response. If the United States supports dictators, then the Soviet Union and socialism must be right. This was the reaction in Cuba after Fulgencio Batista and in Nicaragua after Anastasio So-moza Debayle. Moral misjudgments can presumably be forgiven; forth-right conflict with history has deep-er and more enduring effects.

Thus, the conclusion. Let us follow the practical course. Let us look beyond the current outburst of rhetoric on democracy to the reality. That reality is the absence in the modern industrial country of any enduring alternative to democracy. Accordingly, let us cease linking ourselves to obsolescent forms of government, especially in those countries that are now crossing over into modern economic life. Let us, if reluctantly, face this grim fact: Those who resist embracing dictators, however impracticable may seem their susceptibility to moral judgments, are historically right.

More Challenges to Glasnost

Several thousand nationalist demonstrators gathered [last] weekend in the capitals of the three Baltic states - Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania - to mark the 48th anniver-sary of the Nazi-Soviet pact which led to their forced incorporation toto the Soviet Union. These events are the latest in a series of challenges to the logic of glasnosi and they have much in common with the earlier demonstrations in Moscow by Crimean Tatars seeking a return in their traditional homeland. As well as seeking some degree of national independence, the crowds in Vilmus, the capital of Lithuania, called for freedom for the Roman Catholic Church and for publication of the secret protocols of the Molotov-Rihbentrop pact which partitioned great parts of Eastern Europe between Germany and the Soviet Union.

By now the broad truth about the gulag, the purges of "innocent" party and military leaders, the collaboration with Hitler and the fact that entire minority groups were repressed is relatively widely known. The Russian people would survive the shock of a little historic glasnost. But admitting an appalling past to the Russian people means admitting it to the Baltic peoples, to the Tatars, to the Kazakhs and. ndeed, to the Ukrainians and the Georgians, and that would challenge the very legitimacy of the Russian empire. For it would involve admitting that Russia has long been an opportunistic expansionist power which acquired its fringe states and its national minorities by force of arms and governs them against their will.

In modern labor-management relations, contracts and unions would become perfunctory because high worker productivity and loyalty would be rewarded with generous have flourished despite insipid unions. Experts cite cheap labor as an indisbenefits and job security irrespective of contract or unions. But Korean tradition was that of a strong central power, which made ruler-subject relabest known. In feudal times, the lord's against women. Female laborers, benevolence and generosity were renitifully less than male workers do. Female workers and professionals are forced to resign on marriage. Most young women in manufacturing live in dormitories and net less than $100 monthly while working more than 200 hours. Also, although workers are the largest group in society, they have never had political representation. They have human needs and wants beyond higher wages and agreeable working conditions. They need an institutional forum to articulate and press for their human interests. Better wages and limited unionization, therefore, will not provide an enduring solution to the labor unrest. The case in point is Hyundai, the country's largest conglomerate, which was pressured by the government to permit the organization of Hyundai unions. Because work-site unions are vulnerable to management manipulation and control, this is a limited, albeit welcome, development. Obviously the government must do more than posture as a mediator between labor and management. It has to strive for a fundamental solution including legislation providing equal and fair treatment of female workers, improvement of rules and regulations regarding work safety, restoration of workers' collective rights, and the right to organize industry-wide unions. Otherwise labor unrest will recur or pensist, thereby endangering the future of South Korean democracy.

Nationalist troops are expected to enter tomorrow. "While the government army was hastening to retreat, last-minute sympathizers within the capital seized the government building aided by Civil Guards, without bloadshed, to prevent the extremists from destroying the city," the Salamanca radio stated. book that is now the No. 1 best seller in the United States and is being piled high in U.S. airports for British travelers to take home and for scalpers to peddle in London. "Spycatcher," by a former member of the British Secret Service, deals with events mostly decades old, but shows how British intelligence tracks and sometimes tries to manipulate elected officials. It owes its bestsellerdom entirely to Margaret Thatch-er's dogged efforts to suppress it. This is the same kind of chummy collaboration between British courts and government that kept Harry Evans, a talented editor with a large supply of feistimess, from printing the story of why thousands of babies around the world, including many in Britain, were born with flippers for arms or legs. Mr. Evans, then editor of The Sunday Times and now editor of the American magazine Traveler, fought vainly in the British courts. Finally the European Court of Human Rights upheld him, and British readers learned what had happened to pregnant women who had swallowed the tranquilizer called thalidomide. It took 10 years.

Some years ago I was talking at dinner to Sir Robert Marks, then head of Scotland Yard, on the importance of guaranteeing press rights against censorship. Sir Robert looked at me coolly and said: "Sometimes I think it is a pity Americans and Britons speak the same language. It leads us to the erroneous assumption that we share the same ideas and attitudes." So I was all prepared to commit a column about how, in the United States, neither the "Spycatcher" nor the thalidomide cases could happen. Then I read details of the latest American censorship drive, backed by the full might and glory of the government of the United States. It is against obscenity and pornography. Actually, it is easy for anybody to fight both. Do not write or publish dirty words or take filthy pictures. Do not buy publications that strike you as sexually offensive, or permit your children to do so. But the Department of Justice has cre-

N Freedom of the mind is strong and sure and legal hocus-pocus into play. sure and legal hocus pocus into play. Federal officials say fighting obscenity is a national priority, which should suit drug runners just fine. This is not to sneer at people disgusted by sexual explicitness, but it has to be recognized that not every-body is disgusted, otherwise the vast por-nography industry would not exist. The question, then, is: Should satisfying the appetite for obscenity be crimi-naized, as is the drug traffic? Let's not avoid the issue by formsing only on child pornography; that can be fought with child abuse laws already on the books. This is a government and public campaign to harass out of existence producers of books and movies considered sexually offensive by officials or members of a community. They can rule it out of their own lives and exercise parental control. But they wish to use every method, legal, economic and political, to rule it out of the lives of everybody else. That is the issue and should be acknowledged.

There is material far more vicious than pornography, whose dangers are still de-bated. Words of contempt and hate have led to war, oppression, death, massacre and slavery. Since fifthy hates are far more dangerous than fifthy pictures, shall we outlaw "Mein Kampf," "The Proto-cols of the Elders of Zion," the anti-black garbage of the Ku Khox Klan? #### Observations on Glasnost, as Seen Through Other Eyes

Teate

Regarding the opinion column "Looking for Glasnost on the Scene" (Mean-while, Aug. 11) by Stephen Williams: I was in the Soviet Union at the same time as Mr. Williams, but I have been going there regularly since 1969, speak the language fluently (I am a free-lance translator), and have many friends there. After I read his article, I tried to picture what my impressions would be if I were American and going there for the first time this year. That was rather easy for me to do because I had met several Americans who happened to be on their first visit. The basic difference between them and Mr. Williams was that, from the moment they arrived in the Soviet Union, they looked for friends to guide them in a country where the language is a barrier and the customs so different. And they succeeded in perceiving what is obvious to me; that something new really is taking place there.

First, let's take the way the Russians dress, which is infinitely better than most Americans. They have taste and manage, with what they find in the stores and on the black market, to have a perfectly decent appearance. Conservative, certainly. But jeans are common, and so are more than 40 kilometers (25 miles) out- that this country had had a long way to side the city on your own. You have to come, If it worked, then it was a little ray ask the guide, and if she is not too lazy. of hope, and we all agreed that we found long decried the laggardness of the construction industry. So no one is surprised at seeing weedy-looking backyards in Moscow and Leningrad. They are still cleaner than those in the Broox, and less dangerous. "Good Evening, Moscow," the popular live television program on every evening between 7 and 8, takes questions from the audience on this controversial topic and many others. Mr. Williams's one venture off the tourist circuit did not take him to many markets, obviously. There were lots of fresh vegetables and greens, plenty of fruit, and I even saw wild strawberries being sold by the glass. The real problem: they are very expensive, and that, too, is a hot topic on television. Hunting for punks is a rewarding experience if you enjoy suburban back alleys at night. But you can see some samples in downtown Leningrad when the white nights hit Nevsky Prospekt.

Off-limit places? If you want to go, go. My friends visited the famous Peredelkino graveyard without any problem. And when the guide tells you it's diffi-cult to get there, she is just being lazy. The only requirement: that you not go

And this is truly where glassost is hiding these days: Some things which were very reprehensible a while ago are so no longer, while others are just as dangerous. The 'Onyxpected' Wonders

GENERAL NEWS

CALPE, Spain - Last summer, Bill and Doreen Langford sold their house in England to move into a retirement house they paid $66,000 to build near this village on the eastern Mediterranean coast. But when they arrived, their dream house did not exist. The Langfords found a half-finished foundation and a hole in the ground where their swimming pool should have been.

Now the Langfords are living in the house, but they are still await-ing electricity and water installa-tion. The swimming pool is still a pit. Their dream of a carefree Mediterrancan retirement life has become a nightmare of legal disputes, labor headaches and depleted bank accounts. Most foreigners who buy houses in Spain get legitimate deals and settle down to a comfortable life. But some of the estimated one million Britons, West Germans and other northern Europeans who have flocked to Spain have faced unpleasant surprises. "We just wanted to retire and do the garden," said Mr. Langford, a former British Telecom employee. "Our savings have been virtually spent on the house and we have neither the time nor the money to spend on a legal action."

Real estate experts are warning prospective buyers to be sure that they understand Spanish real estate laws. And the Spanish government, facing pressure from the European Parliament and aware of growing foreign investments, is taking action against local and foreign swin-dlers who have been wheeling and dealing for years. Any hack can do the world much like its hero, gradually losing all purpose and energy. The story of Johnson's rise and fall in the years surrounding World War I is seen through the racial perspective of the 1960s; the central issue here is how the white community in the United States and even abroad reacted with horror and then revenge to the idea that a black could beat the hell out of a boxer from a supposedly supenor race. When Johnson came to London in 1911, only a few months after his victory but already at the start of an increasingly disastrous exile, the chairman of the local boxing authority declared that "the sight of a black man pounding a white man is far from attractive and cannot be considered public entertainment." At home his championship was regarded as little short of an incitement to black rebellion, hence the frantic search for a "great' white hope" to take the title back. Ovations for 'Ermione' At the Rossini Festival

By William Weaver P-ESARO, Italy - The growing - and well-deserved - success of the Rossini Opera Festival here in the composer's birthplace makes almost everything that is presented an automatic news event as well as a cultural occasion.

For the opening last weekend of "Ermione," last staged in 1819, the capacity audience included not only critics and musicologists from all over the world, but also a sizable representation from Italian industry. finance, politics, and films. Television cameras rolled both inside and outside the lovely Teatro Rossini (this year, blissfully cooled). Tickets were priced at a stiff 250,000 lire (about $190), but none had been available for months.

Despite its long absence from the stage, "Ermione" was not entirely unknown. A concert performance in Siena 10 years ago, though barely adequate, had given some idea of the opera's qualities, and a later concert performance led to a premiere recording and further ac-quaintance. Still, some music lovers in the Pesaro audience - after the dazzling "Viaggio a Reims" of two years ago and the dramatically in-tense "Bianca e Faliero" last year

- may have been surprised and even a hit put off by the cool aus-terity of "Ermione," derived from Racine's tragedy "Andromaque" and with some of its olympian ele-

there is no room for a love duet, and the heroes and heroines --- usually less than beroic - spend much of their time warding off unwanted attentions. There is a certain sameness about the music, appealing and ingenious as much of it is. No one could complain about the casting, which supported Ca-balle with Marilyn Home, Chris

If "Ermione" caused some puzzlement, there was unanimous joy over the festival's other opera, occasione fa il ladro," an carly (1812) one-act farce, conducted with enchancing brio by Salvatore Accardo, with the splendid Orchestra Giovanile Italiana (impressive also in "Ermione"), and a brilliant cast headed by Luciana Serra, who used her surefire coloratura in delightful effect. Claudio Desderi, in a Leporello-like servant role, was in excellent, witty voice, as were the others. Jean-Pierre Ponnelle's staging was ioventive and enjoyable,

The festival continues through Sept. 7, with concerts and perfor-mances of Rossini's Stabat Mater and Petite Messe Solennelle. Whatever you can see, Pesaro - the across state borders were soon trumped up, and the champion was rapidly made over into a criminal outcast, one who lived on until 1946 but largely as a vaudeville exhibit.

We are however never allowed to know what Jobnson himself thought of his treatment, never given any real insight into an evidently complex and self-destructive figure. Just as the only fight we ever see is Johnson's fight for survival. For all that, the "Great White Hope" now joins "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" as a welcome addition to what should perhaps be known as the RSC's and-American scason at the Mermaid.

Elsewhere, it is proving an artis-tic summer for the London theater. Last week, a life of Augustus John; this week, William Hogarth. In the Barbican Pit from Stratford, Nick Dear's "The Art of Success" has already attracted a certain amount of critical flak for its portrait of Hogarth as an 18th century time-serving, money-grubbing hack in-

Ever since I discovered Ramada Hotels I've pitied the plight of the poor jaded traveller. Here, at the end of a long hard working day, I m welcomed as an honoured guest. Here I can just relax in the lap of luxury, indulge myself in the sumptuous restaurant or refresh myself in the pool.

If I need to do business, all the facilities are at hand, from a pen to a conference room.

And if I want to be spoiled, the attentive, personal service is all I could ever wish for.

But although the service and facilities never vary in standard, every Ramada hotel is an original with a style and character of its own.

That's why when I am travelling on business, I always return to Ramada.

It's the next best thing to going home.

Adventures in Advertising: Pop-Ups to Jingles to 3-D By BRUCE HOROVITZ

os Angeles Times Service

OS ANGELES - When Transamerica Corp. insurance agents hand their business cards to elients later this month, a curious thing will happen. A miniature pyra-mid will pop out of the fold-up husiness cards. To be precise, a three-dimensional cutout of San Francisco's wellknown Transamerica pyramid building will emerge. This follows the company's highly successful advertising campaign that appeared as a pop-up ad in Time magazine last September. That $3 million advertising insert featured a 9-inch (23-centimeter) pop-up picture of the building — and the rest of the San Francisco sky-line. The pyramid on the look-alike card will be about 2 inch-bringing a sense of us as revolutionary."

New wrinkles in print advertising are influencing companies to do far more than change their calling cards. Companies, once fascinated by the power of television to introduce new products or shape corporate images, are experi-menting with new printing techniques now available in maga-zines. In the process, they are changing the way ads feel, smell, and even the way they sound. When readers of the New Yorker and New York magazines open their December issues, they will be greeted by "singing" centerfold ads for Absolut vodka. These ads, with the aid of a special microchip, play such seasonal tunes as "Jingle Bells," "We Wish You a Merry Christmas" and "Frosty the Snowman," The microchip - powered by a tiny battery - will automatically play when readers turn to the centerfold ad.

"Can you imagine being on an airplane when 30 people all open their copies of these magazines?" posed John B. Caldwell Jr., senior vice president of marketing for the New York-based Magazine Publishers Association.

B UT THAT is not the print industry's only song. Holograms — which produce three-dimensional images — will pre-miere in magazine advertising next year. At least four major advertisers plan to use holograms to sell their messages in magazines. "The public is bored with standard print advertising." said Lee Lacey, founder and chief executive of Holo-Source Corp., a Southfield, Michigan, company that specializes in holographic printing. Last month, Mr. Lacey's company designed a hologram ad that features the new Lincoln Mercury car, the Merkur Scorpio. The laser photograph is printed on 175,000 cards mailed mostly to owners of expensive sport cars.

More pop-up ads are on the way, according to Waldo Hunt, chairman and chief executive of Intervisual Communications Inc., the Los Angeles company that created the Transamerica ad, but similar ads for Honeywell Inc. and Chrysler Corp.'s Dodge division. His company is creating two more pop-up ads — one that will run in October for a major bank and another scheduled for a Christmas release by a major liquor maker.

But Mr. Hunt, whose company also makes pop-up children's books, thinks that the big future for pop-up ads might not be in consumer magazines, but in business-to-business advertising in trade publications. "That's where an advertiser who wants to introduce something special can really dominate a publication," he said.

These ad innovations are not happening by accident. Magazincs read by the general public have suffered a two-year slide in the number of advertising pages sold, said Mr. Caldwell of the Magazine Publishers Association. And in the first half of 1987, the number of magazine ad pages sold nudged up less than I percent he said.

Tunnel Finance Approved

£5 Billion for Channel Project

The Associated Press

LONDON - Enrotunnel an-nounced Tuesday that a group of 50 banks had committed itself to a £5 billion ($8.1 billion) loan to the British-French consortium to partly finance the planned rail tunnel under the English Channel. The loan was announced months ago but the last of the banks finally committed themselves this week, the British co-chairman of the project, Alastair Morton, said at a news conference.

Eurotunnel is a consortium of construction companies and banks building the tunnel, on which construction has begun.

Eurotunnel will not be able to draw on its credit until after completion of a £750 million share issue scheduled for November.

Lead managers of the loan are Banque Indosuez, Banque Nation-ale de Paris, Crédit Lyonnais, Mid-land Bank PLC and National Westminster Bank PLC. The lead banks are each committing £170

Within the past two weeks, Britsin's other major banks have decid-ed to join the syndication, Mr. Morton said. Barclays Bank PLC and Lloyds Bank PLC committed £128 million each and Standard Chartered PLC £60 million.

Crédit National, a French goverument-owned long-term indus-trial investment bank, has joined and is underwriting £60 million.

French and British banks account for about 15 percent each of the syndication, Japanese banks a little over 25 percent, West German banks about 12 percent, North American banks about 7 percent and Arab banks about 5 percent. The £5 billion loan is an 18-year credit with an interest rate of 1 to 1¼ percentage point over the Lon-don interbank offered rate, which now stands at between 7 1/16 and 7% percent Mr. Morton said Eurotunnel would seek to refinance the loan within two years of the tunnel's planned opening in 1993.

South Africa's gold-mining industry employs more than 300,000 black workers.

Since gold was first discovered in the central Transvaal region in 1884, it has dominated the country's economic life.

South Africa produces more than two-thirds of all the gold mined yearly in the noncommun ist world, and the country's gold reserves are believed to account for roughly half of the recoverable gold that exists in the world.

Despite government attempts to diversify South Africa's economic base, gold sales still ac-count for nearly 60 percent of foreign carnings, and fluctuations in gold prices still have a large effect on the overall economy. Wealth from the mines has

Gillette Turns Down 3d Bid

By Revlon, of $5.41 Billion

New York Times Service

NEW YORK --- Gillette Co.'s board has rejected Revion Group

Inc.'s unsolicited $5.41 billion takeover offer and reiterated the company's intention to remain independent. The directors' announcement on Monday came after the stock market closed. Officials at Revion were not evailable for comment.

The rejection of the $47-a-share offer marks the third time that Gillette has spurned Revion's chairman, Ronald O. Pereiman. In November, Revion dropped a $32.50-a-share, or $4.12 billion, bid after Gillette agreed to buy back Revion's 13.9 percent stake in the company, giving Revion a $34 million profit. In June, Gillette rebuffed a sweetened Revion bid of $40,50 a share or $4,66 billion.

Mr. Perelman's third offer came despite a standstill agreement reached between Revion and Gillette in November. As part of that agreement, Revion agreed not to purchase Gillette stock or to seek control of the company for 10 years, Parily because of the nature of the standstill agreement, analysts had been skeptical that Mr. Perelman's latest offer would win much

In addition, some advertisers are finding themselves with almost nowhere else to turn. "Advertising distilled spirits on television is out of the question." said Michel Roux. president of Carillon Importers Ltd_ which distributes Swedishmade Absolut vodka. "The idea of hringing the sense of sound to our ads therefore struck us as revolutionary."

said.

The concept has already been tried in France. In March 1985, a musical ad for IBM appeared in a mass-market French magazine, Le Point. But the ad could be placed only in the magazine's newsstand editions. The technology to keep the tiny microchip from being crushed in mailed copies has only recently been perfected.

Even scent strips --- which have traditionally given consumers a free whiff of after-shave or smear of lipstick - took an odd turn this month. Rolls-Royce Motors placed an ad in Architectural Digest that featured the distinctive leather smell of the interior of a new Rolls-Royce. "It's our way of busting through the clutter," said Rocbelle Udell, senior vice president and creative director at Della Femina, Travisano & Partners, the New York agency that created the ad. But the new technologies bring with them new problems. Specifi-cally: The ads are expensive and take a long time to produce. The singing ads can cost advertisers upward of $1 per copy, and the pop-up ads and holograms cost up to 50 cents each. Conventional print ads typically cost a fraction of that. Many of these new print ads also require long lead times. The singing ad campaign, for example, had to be planned nearly a year in ad-

They began slipping in late July amid reports that the cartel was overproducing because of tensions in the Gulf. Most analysts had feared that the Gulf situation would push prices sharply higher. Mr. Lukman implicitly confirmed this trend on Tuesday, when he said at a news conference in Lagos: "It should he obvious" that the tension in the Gulf "ought not to have lured producers into over-producine." "Recent low oil prices, " be said, "are a signal of what is likely in happen without a positive response from all oil producers, OPEC and non-OPEC alike."

Mr. Lukman said that output this month would not exceed 1.2 million barrels a day over OPEC's ceiling, and said that July's produc-tion was about 1 million barrels above quota.

He said he did not rule out the possibility that a full emergency OPEC meeting could be convened Meanwhile, a spokesman for Norway's Oil Ministry said that Norway, which agreed to limit pro-duction by 7.5 percent to help OPEC's effort to stabilize prices at around $18 a barrel, could end its cutback if oil prices stayed below that figure and OPEC did nothing to reimpose discipline. Norway is not an OPEC member.

Foreign exchange dealers said that the U.S. currency got an initial boost from comments by Japanese monetary officials that the major central banks would not tolerate a further fall in the dollar. Then Mr. Yeutter made similar comments.

Although there was no sign that the Federal Reserve was buying dollars to support recent purchases by the Bank of Japan, dealers said that Mr. Yeutter's remarks were enough to harden fears of coordinated central bank action in a market already concerned that the dollar is oversold. In New York, the dollar rose to on Thursday, according to many economists. Although anti-inflation hard-liners within the council will probably continue to press for firmer interest rates, the majority belief that such action could imperil a fragile economy and anger foreign allies is expected to prevail, the economists said Tuesday.

Thus, the 3 percent discount rate and 5 percent Lombard rate will probably be left unchanged and the bank is likely to try to keep shortterm call money within a range of 3.6 to 4 percent, economists said. On Tuesday, the central bank offered 8.1 billion Deutsche marks through a 15-day, securities repurchase pact fixed at 3.6 percent, as the key short-term rate neared 4 percent.

"It's clear that the Bundesbank does not want higher interest rates," aid Norbert Vowinckel, head of macroeconomic research at Bank in Liechtenstein (Frankfurt) GmbH. "It daren't do so because of the currency aspect and the economy aspect," he addee

Although the dollar is now around the 1.82 DM level that it was trading at st the time of the Paris currency accord in February, it could begin to slide if West Germany were seen to be favoring a tighter credit stance. This would make mark-denominated investments more attractive, economists said.

The other major restraint on any Bundesbank tightening is the economy, economists said. Anthony Thomas, chief international economist at Kleinwort Grieveson Securities in London, estimated that the economy will grow 1.5 percent this year, adjusted for inflation, compared with official estimates of 1.5 percent to 2 percent.

WASHINGTON - Global securities trading advanced another step this week when options contracts on the American Stock Exchange's widely watched Major Market Index began trading on Amster-dam's European Options Exchange.

The Major Market Index option allows investors, speculators and hedgers to bet on the direction of the market, as represented by 20 blue-chip stocks that actually trade on the New York Stock Exchange.

Of the 20 stocks, 17 are included on the Dow Jones industrial average of 30 leading U.S. shares. Paul G. Stevens, executive vice president at the Amex, said that the arrangement with Amsterdam, which began on over-the-counter market swaps stock quotes Monday, marked the first time that an iden-

However, in the growing trend toward internationalization of markets, there have been similar links involving financial futures contracts. For example, the Chicago Mercontile Exchange and the Singapore Interna-tional Monetary Exchange allow traders to trade the same Eurodollar or currency futures contracts on each other's exchanges.

The Amex's two-year effort to develop the Amsterdam linkage is part of a fierce com-petitive struggle among U.S. exchanges for international business. The NYSE extended its trading day by opening at 9:30 A.M. instead of 10 A.M. to create a wider overlap with European markets, and the competing with the London Stock Exchange.

after the Standard & Poor's 100. Howard L. Kramer, assistant director of the division of market regulation at the Securities and Exchange Commission, said investors in the United States and Europe will be able to open and close positions in the XMI options in either Amsterdam or at the Amex in New York. Trading will be governed by the same rules at both exchanges.

The European Options Exchange will trade the option from noon until 4:30 P.M., Amsterdam time. With the Amex opening at 9:30 A.M., it will give the two exchanges a

New York. "I would expect most of the interest from Europe to be investors initiating positions in their time zone and closing them out later in the day in New York."

He said that a key problem was that trading in the 20 securities that constitute the XMI did not begin in New York until 9:30 A.M. Thus, a European investor might not want to open an index position before know-ing how the affected stocks would move.

Joseph Stefanelli, vice president for options marketing at the Amex, predicted that the XMI, which trades an average of 75,000 contracts a day, would trade 1,500 to 2,000 in the first month in Amsterdam and eventually

THE narrator of "Moonrise, Moonset seems bent on being unlikable. He is critical and querulous, boastful and self-pitying. And be draws attention to his defects. "What's going on here?" he asks after a litany of com-plaints. "This plaintive tone disgusts me." Elsewhere, he takes the words out of his read-er's mouth: "I seem to be writing out of spite." It's a pose, of course. Tadensz Konwicki is an accomplished enough stylist to make his narrator, who is inseparable from the author of this very personal work, altogether ingratiat-ing. But that would dilute the bitterness at the heart of the book. Labeled a "real-life novel," "Moonrise, Moonset," lurches along from reminiscence to diatribe to confession to lamentation. The autobiography is entangled with politics; there are frequent pauses for reflections on Poland's grim history, subject always to the power of its big neighbor: "For centuries now, the Poles have been sentenced by Moscow and Ortho-doxy to death, the death of the Polish state and nation." Konwicki, a prominent novelist, nation." Konwicki, a prominent novenst, screenwriter and director in Poland, scens to be struggling in what he thinks of as his old age (he is only 61, but physical allments are accu-mulating) to get at the crux of his own past and that of his unfortunate country. As a tean-ager during the German occupa-tion in World War II, he fought with the Polish Horma Army ensure the German and when tion in World War II, he fought with the Polish Home Army against the Germans, and when the Russians moved in at the war's end, he found himself briefly fighting against them as well. Then, for 15 years, he belonged to the Communist Party and supported the regime imposed on Poland by Moscow, a period that he recalls with shame: "My friends dragged me into it, as if it were a beer house or a brothel." For the past decade, his work has been pub-lished by the underground press. What the author calls his "grotesque jour-nal" is full of anecdotes, some about his rivalnes with writers who have made their peace with the anthorities; most of the names ring no bells, and he seems to be straining to make private grudges matters of public import. His

OBSERVER The Gadgetry of Power

By Russell Baker FEW YORK - A letter to the cditor of The Washington Post recently criticized the men down there for wearing power neckties. I find it beguiling, and I sympathize with those men, although the letter writer's description of what a power necktie looks like was vague. Small brown figures on a yellow background, sort of, apparently.

A genuine power necktie, of course, would be a rope with a noose, but these power things that people wear and do nowadays aren't really about power. They are about powerlessness. They are ways people devise to kid themselves out of feeling like victims of a world out of control.

In New York, where kidding yourself is half the game, they eat power lunches and power hreakfasts, ride in power antomobiles, live at power addresses, wear power talk to each other. cycelasses, fill out their expense accounts in power offices and frolic at power parties.

I am not making this up. These people really talk about power food, power addresses, power this and power that, with only the faintest trace of irony, and oo selfmockery at all.

So New York produces this iocessant pretense to power, which accounts for a lot of its petty cruelty as well as its farce. You hear grown men, expensively tailored, even manicured and sprayed with imported scents, boasting about the location of their theater seats. Minor executives behave like bushleague Mussolinis to make bumanity gape at the power they wield.

The one place in the country where there was real power, I once nored. If I phone: thought, was Washington. They had the button. They had the BRS. They had the Marines, the B-52s, the CIA, the Food and Drug Administration, the FBI, the federal penitentiaries.
